

ABSTRACT:

With an electronic optical recording device for optical recording on rewritable media, with which two different states depending on the information content are generated on the medium, there is proposed that when the states are written, the reflection of only one of the states is measured and the measured value is used for controlling the power of the laser diode even when the other state is written.

Fig. 1

09.03.2001 10:00:00